

MOBU – USING DISTRIBUTED LEDGER TECHNOLOGY TO INCREASE LIQUIDITY IN CAPITAL MARKETS

The MOBU HOLDING COMPANY owns the following

1. Digital securities issuance platform and unique STO protocol standard
2. MOBU Initiatives – subsidiary companies including a game farm (impact investing), fuel station and forex trading company. Their rights to ownership and dividends will be represented by digital securities to boost adoption and platform usage. MOBU will own a minimum of 20% of each company. MOBU will be profitable from day one.
3. 15% Equity stake in Equity Express, a licensed operational stock exchange of which the current CEO expects a turnover of 500m ZAR in 2019 alone. Other shareholders include prominent listed companies like Investec Private Bank, Peresec, Lagae securities and the largest family office advisory group of South Africa. Application to list bonds and debt notes is currently under review by the FSCA.
4. MOBU will be the 100% sole broker for all digital securities, owning an FSP 1 license in South Africa.
5. MOBU confirmed issuers. MOBU already have some of the most influential individuals in Africa as clients and will obtain up to 5% equity in their businesses.
6. 100% of Mobu Cash, a Singapore based payment company to provide crypto- fiat, fiat-crypto and fiat accounts in up to 21 currencies in addition to debit cards accepted world-wide.

What do you actually get when buying a MOBU digital security?

Each MOBU digital security represents a physical right to ownership, dividends and rights to assets in case of liquidation of the holding company as any conventional share just with the new age benefits of digital securities! The MOBU digital security will power the issuance platform, digital securities exchange and e-money crypto payment solution.

Revenue and Sustainability

MOBU will take 1% of all STO's using the MOBU protocol and take a small percentage of the marketplace between service providers. MOBU will charge listing fees for security tokens on the exchange as well as transaction fees. Service providers in the ecosystem needs to stake MOBU tokens to receive the right to operate and generate revenue which will effectively lower the supply and increase the price of MOBU tokens as well.

Dividend policy and voting rights

MOBU token holders can obtain voting rights by owning 5% of MOBU digital securities in circulation. MOBU will declare an annual dividend to additionally compensate investors.

MOBU is the leading ecosystem for digital securities and can be seen as the Goldman Sachs of Blockchain!